Of course, we have recorded the most accurate and thorough, mile-wide breakdown of the trail to help you make the most of your saddle time. And there's more. This guide is dedicated to the detailing of the trail itself as well as to the support in the preparation, planning and implementation of a multi-day bike tour. Similarly, the areas to which we travel for our summer multi-day tours have also imposed fewer restrictions than before, so that our operations are running again in all areas. With our reopening, we have new protocols to keep you and our employees as safe as possible, and we work with our guests individually to ensure that your expectations and our expectations are met. This includes each guest giving a review and signing a participation contract (for day tours and multi-day tours) in addition to a waiver for your tour. We also have a Covid Mitigation Procedures document to explain our multi-day tour logs. We do our day trips throughout the summer in Moab and leave the city early to beat the heat, and our multi-day tours are gradually increasing after so many of you have had to cancel. We work with families and groups to create private experiences and bring together smaller groups to meet our minimum for a trip. We greatly appreciate our dedicated guests and staff for staying with us and helping us survive the loss of more than half of our season. Thank you very much! Be sure to be good and ride your bike! For mountain bikers who want to support the trip themselves, 2 Pedal founder Rad Anzulovic puts together a full-colour guide with maps, pictures and lots of information to help you plan and ride. The project is on Kickstarter and has already reached its original funding target, but more money will help it add better artwork and increase the number of available first-round prints. A deposit of 20 dollars will get a copy, and larger amounts could take you a private semi-assisted trip to and from the trailheads with lunch and a bus to transport your cargo between support stops. Looking for maps of other famous hiking trails and systems? 2 Pedal's website sells a variety of publishers and artists. Rad also puts together an informal ride on the trail in May 2013.
